Ise Chrysanthemums

The flowers on this type are what the Japanese term as a round, broom-shaped flower. They are a very fine petaled bloom which does not open out flat, but stays in an upright position until they are much past their prime. They have no names so come in color only. They make good material for filler in bouquets and arrangements. The plant grows to about 3 feet high, and even though the stem is small, they are very rigid. They flower approximately November 1.
